Last Civil War Veteran in Claridon Township Is Also Wild West Pioneer

MARTIN ADAMS

With Father in Union Army, Then Rode in Pony Express

KNEW BUFFALO BILL

Will Have Honor Post in Claridon Memorial Services Sunday.

This account of the colorful career of Martin Adams Marion county Civil war veteran and frontiersman was written by George N Hinds of 187 East Washington street who for many years was a member of The Star's editorial staff It is contributed in connection with the annual Memorial day services at Claridon cemetery which will take place Tuesday It is especially appropriate as Mr Adams is the only surviving Civil war veteran in Claridon township where he has claimed his last two comrades in the township only recently They were James C Shaw who died May 5 and Nelson J Myers 90 whose death occurred May 7

BY GEORGE N HINDS

On a winding ribbon of graveled street skirting the venerable village of Claridon to the south sconce is the unpretentious rustic beauty of the vine embowered cottage of Martin Adams Claridon township's last surviving veteran of the war of the sixties adventurer of the bloody border lands of the western plains and mountains pony express rider boyhood comrade and lifelong friend of Buffalo Bill Cody plainsman scout showman and pawn of frontier chance

Mr Adams will reach the end of his ninety second year next September 12 but his stalwart figure will be prominent in the exercises incident to the observance of Memorial day at Claridon cemetery

The visitor who calls at the comfortable little home where Martin as he is known to all resides alone finds no palsied patriarch drowsing in an easy chair but a man among men weathered and bronzed tempered in the fires of a rugged outdoor life to the full needs of his day

Rough hewn in more than six feet of stature erect as an Indian sure of eye and memory he meets one with a firm handclasp and those simple gestures of hospitality born in an atmosphere where strong men voiced their welcomes in but few words

Mart Adams lived long with that breed of iron and sinew whelped in the environment of buffalo grass sage bush and the sod house There he was schooled in the ways of man where quiet manners were sufficient to an expression of friendship and were the best guarantee against an early grave on Boot Hill

Father and Son Enlist

When the first battle fronts were blazing in the Civil war Mart and his father left their home in Cardington and journeyed by wagon to Columbus where together they applied for enlistment in M company Third Ohio Volunteer Infantry The father was promptly accepted but the boy was under the military age and his eyes filled with tears when he was rejected Tall rawboned a perfect specimen of pioneer youth he pleaded with the enlistment officer for a man's chance in the war—and he won The officer looked with favor on the sandy haired lad with the steel blue eyes and was wise in the material of which real soldiers are fashioned

Mart and his father served throughout the entire period of the rebellion in the same company and were mustered out together When the war was ended the youth found he had only begun his career of adventure Hungering for the excitement of frontier life he enlisted with the Third United States regulars for service in the old west In 1866 he found himself a unit in the command stationed at what was then known as Fort Dodge but later became Dodge City Here Wild Bill Hikok Pat Garrett Wyatt Erp Billy the Kid the James and Younger brothers and many others in ten gallon hats buckskins high heeled boots and jangling spurs exampled the vagaries and uncertainties of life for the western man both good and bad The fort consisted of a long row of excavations in the rocky hillsides along the treeless banks of the Arkansas river These habitations were constructed in much the same manner as the modern dugout for soldiery

A Test of Courage

Young Adams was of the sort in brawn and daring who would win an officer's attention under any circumstance and the job to test the metal of the lad was waiting when he arrived

Hays City was 100 miles to the north and just a little to the east of Fort Dodge. Military mails out of Fort Dodge were important. It was necessary to carry them by pony express to Hays City there to connect with the express riders relaying east and west from St Joseph to the California coast. Personal mail cost fifty dollars a half ounce for the carrying Many valuables were intrusted to the pony express. The route of the riders between Fort Dodge and Hays City coursed straight through the hunting grounds of Apaches, Cheyennes, Comanches Kiowas and other marauding tribes of Indians Whenever it was possible for a brave to kill a pony express rider in addition to what the mail contained he secured a fairly good Spencer rifle, a pair

CITY FIREMEN'S LAYOFFS BEGIN

In Effect at 6 Tonight Police Furloughs To Be Strictly on Seniority Basis

GET RULING FROM STATE

Chief McFarland Criticizes Rearrangement Would Close Stations 2 and 3

Developments today in the city's layoff of 20 firemen and policemen included issuance of an order by Service Director John V Ruth furloughing 11 firemen at 6 o'clock tonight and a ruling by the state civil service commission that elimination of nine members of the police department should be made purely on a basis of seniority regardless of rank with the exception of Chief William E Marks

Termination of service for 11 firemen is based on an order issued last night by Safety Director Ruth fixing tonight at 6 as the time for the furloughs to begin Seven of the firemen left the city's three stations last night when a new shift came on and four on today's shift are affected

Ralph Emmons chairman of the state civil service commission telephoned at noon today to City Solicitor Ralph L Carhart that the layoffs in the police department should be made on a basis of seniority in view of the fact that council abolished all ranks in the department excepting those of a chief and seven patrolmen

A list of policemen who would be laid off as a result of this ruling had not been made up early this afternoon but it appeared from civil service records that those affected are Louis Cunningham Homer Osmun Clyde Hardin Louis Kirts Ora DeWees J S Underhill E C Mackan Henry Tong and Fred Norton DeWees and Mack an hold the rank of captain and Hardin and Cunningham are desk sergeants

Those eliminated from the fire department are Theodore E Brownlee John F Cocherl D J Finley Charles L Erow Harold W Monnette James T Fisher Paul Sifritt L Glord Lattimore Charles McDonough James Rid rell and Burdette Bindley

Chief Criticizes Plan

As the layoff order came to the fire department Chief McFarland spoke critically of the administrations plans to keep all three fire stations open with a force of only 21 men He said he had recommended that the Mark street and the West Side stations be closed but his superiors insisted on keeping them open

By concentrating the available men at the Central station the fire fighting force would be in the heart of the business district which presents the greatest fire hazard the chief explained

Says Man Power Too Low

The administration's plans to keep all three stations open provides for two shifts of two men each at the Mark street and West Side station and two shifts of six men each plus the chief at the Central station Two men can't handle a hose line and ladder and do all the work connected with fighting a fire Chief McFarland said commenting on this setup

The chief and his driver will answer all calls and the hook and ladder wagon from the Central station also will answer a majority of calls under the new setup

Chief McFarland said the layoff order leaves the department without enough manpower to use tarpaulins which he said have cut fire damage in half in the last five years by protecting furniture from water damage and makes no provision for a mechanic. It will be impossible for firemen to answer calls for use of the department's inhalator he said

CALL MEETING HERE TO STUDY WPA PROBLEM

Chamber of Commerce Arranges Conference Between Business Men Officials

WEDNESDAY DATE SET

Lack of Money for Materials Seriously Hampering Program in City

Marion business men and public officials will met Wednesday night at the Chamber of Commerce headquarters to discuss the increasing seriousness of the relief situation here and to initiate plans for providing finances to continue the federal WPA program in Marion

The meeting which will start at 8 o'clock has been called by the Chamber of Commerce at the request of Harold M Haylor district WPA director Letters notifying business men and officials of the meeting were mailed today under the signature of R T Lewis president of the Chamber

The WPA program has been seriously handicapped in the last few days because of lack of funds to finance the cost of materials needed to carry on the projects Some projects have been stopped entirely and work on others has been greatly reduced

The present problem R T Lewis said resulted from failure of the 3 2 mill city levy and county one mill levy to carry at the May 12 primary A part of the funds the levy would have raised was to be used to finance city sponsored WPA projects

Engineer in Mansfield

F R Walcott Marion county WPA engineer was at the district office in Mansfield today and the present status of all city projects could not be learned although employes in the WPA office here pointed to the brick relaying project on East Church street as an example of the problem that has arisen

When the project was started 108 WPA workers were assigned to the job This force was reduced to 40 men last week because of lack of new brick to carry on the project The 40 men are relaying the old brick that was found satisfactory Thus 68 men on the one project alone have been thrown out of work and are being returned to direct relief rolls

Tom S Cathers city engineer said 12 carloads of new brick costing about $2400 are needed to complete the East Church street project Two carloads are needed to carry out a proposed project of relaying brick on State street between Church and Center streets Two and one half carloads are needed to complete a similar project on Cherry street Mr Cathers said A section of East Church Street a section of Cherry street and a section of Park boulevard are torn up awaiting purchase of new brick by the city

WPA employes said 50 men were laid off two days ago on the city wide macadamizing project

Monthly Payroll $55,000

NEW DEAL ASKS SURPLUS SLASH

Seeks To Put "Teeth" Into Existing Laws Against Improper Fund Accumulations

POINTS TO OLD LOOPHOLES

Also Aims Blow at Corporations Formed To Avoid Personal Income Tax

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON May 23 — New dealers began a last ditch struggle today to equip the government with a big stick to force certain corporations to distribute large sums in dividends

Now that the senate finance committee has turned thumbs down on the proposal to levy stiff graduated taxes on undivided corporation income and has approved instead a comparatively low tax of 7 per cent administration men have concentrated on an effort to put teeth in existing penalties against corporations improperly accumulating surplus

45% on First $100,000

The present law provides that such corporations shall pay a tax of 45 per cent on the first $100,000 of net income and 35 per cent on all over $100,000 These levies are much stiffer than those on other corporations which are taxed from 12½ to 15 per cent on net income

However officials declare that the penalty taxes have never been easy to administer The question of motives enters into the problem opening up a field for long legal arguments as to whether a corporation is or is not improperly accumulating income

As the senate finance committee gathered today the new dealers planned a quest for ways and means of tightening up this section of the law

Aim at Some Corporations

Also remaining to be settled was the question of high penalty taxes on certain corporations which some senators contend are used as tax avoidance devices by men who without them would pay high taxes on their personal incomes

By forcing money out of corporations into the hands of stockholders where it would be subject to both normal incomes taxes and surtaxes the administration senators hope to increase the estimated yield of the program which has been tentatively agreed upon in other major details by the senate finance committee

THOMAS RAPS ROOSEVELT AT SOCIALIST CONCLAVE

Says Labor's Backing President Against Reaction Same as When They Supported Wilson for Peace

By The Associated Press

CLEVELAND May 23—The 1936 national convention of the Socialist party opened today with key note speakers advocating immediate constitutional change and cautioning labor against the "mistaken policy" of supporting President Roosevelt

Norman Thomas national leader of the party and former Marion man who probably will again be the Socialist nominee for president, sounded this theme in declaring

"We have on the other hand neither the imminence of actual fascism nor the pressure of a Hitler in our borders as in France, nor on the other have we the strength in some people's front combination to check a fascist menace

"Our tactics therefore are not dictated by a situation which confronts France In France it gives cause for some concern that the Communists having taken an initiative in building a rather opportunistic people's front now refuse to share in the responsibility of victory It is clear that our duty to socialism in America is to maintain our own clear line"

Our great problems come from the avowed intention of certain leaders in the labor movement, some of whom have been Socialists, to support Roosevelt, as they say, against reaction This is to

FIREMAN HURT SHORT TIME BEFORE LAYOFF

Charles E Erow Aggravates Spine Injury Suffered in Stockyards

WAS WORKING LAST DAY

Capt Stafford Burned About Face Both Injured in Feb 15 Fire

Less than 12 hours before he was to be furloughed indefinitely as a city fireman Charles E Erow 70 of 250 Spencer street suffered a severe injury while fighting a fire at a Silver street residence this morning

Erow slipped while climbing down a water soaked shingle roof and in regaining his balance wrenched vertebrae of his back and neck aggravating a serious injury suffered in the Marion stock yards fire last Feb 15

Fellow firemen said Erow complained of extreme pain in the upper part of his spine apparently became partially paralyzed on the right side of his body and gradually lapsed into unconsciousness

He was taken to the Central station but no physicians were immediately available there so firemen took him to the City hospital where two physicians gave him medical attention At noon one of the physicians said his condition apparently is fair An X ray examination was to be made this afternoon if Erow continues to improve He regained consciousness a short time after he was taken to the hospital

Four Off Today

Erow is one of four firemen working today who are to be laid off when shifts are changed tonight The other seven affected by the furlough order left duty last night at 7 but were subject to call for service today

Capt O C Mike Stafford of the West Side station suffered a scorched face in the same fire in which Erow was injured this morning A burst of flames from under the eaves of the burning house swept his face as he stood on a ladder Capt Stafford also suffered an injury in the stockyards fire in which Erow was previously hurt At that time Capt Stafford suffered fracture of two ribs

Firemen said Erow apparently never recovered fully from the spine injury suffered in the stockyards fire He slipped on ice and the upper part of his back caught the full weight of his body as he fell He was stunned by the fall but a few minutes later was able to resume work He has been taking treatments for the injury since that time and occasionally complained of pain in his neck and the upper part of his spine firemen said

Physician's Statement

One of the attending physicians this morning said Erow apparently gave his injured spine a severe wrench when he slipped on the roof this morning He was helping to take down a line of hose when the mishap occurred

Damage estimated at $700 was caused to the G W Skatzer residence at 240 Silver street by the fire at which Erow and Capt Stafford were injured The fire was started in the shingle roof by sparks from a nearby chimney Fire Chief F J McFarland said Part of the roof and siding were burned away

The fire broke out at 7 05 a m Firemen from the West Side and Mark street stations answered the call Thirteen men fought the flames using two lines of hose to bring it under control

Erow one of the regular drivers of the chief's car went to the fire from the Central station

Former Marion Man Found Guilty of Embezzling Funds of State Conservation Dept.

SENTENCE DELAYED

Attorney Points to Error of Clerk in Preparing Verdicts, Penalty One to Ten Years

Frank L Brother former Marion man today prepared to seek a new trial following his conviction last night by a Franklin county jury on a charge of embezzling $13 781 of funds of the state conservation division in which he formerly served as chief of the accounting bureau The Associated Press reported today in a news dispatch from Columbus

Brother's attorney today outlined plans to seek new trial with one of the grounds a court clerk's error in giving the jury two blanks for a guilty verdict but none for acquittal

Penalty for the offense is one to 10 years in ohio's penitentiary Judge John R King of the Franklin county common pleas court in which Brothers was tried deferred sentence pending hearing of the proposed motion for new trial Joseph Shearer Brothers attorney said the motion would be filed within three days

Free On Bond

Meanwhile Brothers is free under $7 000 bond

The jury deliberated actually only 70 minutes but when an error was found in the forms of verdict first sent to the jury room with the jury new forms were made out and the jury returned to deliberate again It was 4 45 p m — exactly an hour after the case was submitted to it—before the properly filled out verdict was read

Only one ballot was taken by the jurors It was reported but because the jurors thought it proper another ballot was taken when the jury returned to deliberate a second time. Both were unanimously in favor of a guilty verdict it was said

Brothers refused to comment on the verdict saying

Anything I might say now wouldn't do any good

He later thanked Judge King for his fair consideration of the case

He was overheard to tell his wife as they were leaving the courtroom

"Don't worry I have faith"

His wife, daughter son and daughter in law were with him during the day and when the verdict was read Patting his father on the back as they were leaving the room the son said:

"We're not beaten yet"

The jury first reported at 4 15 p m, after receiving additional instructions from Judge King on how to sign the verdict This verdict found Brothers guilty "as charged in the indictment"

Amount Not Set

As the jury was being polled it was discovered that no amount of embezzlement had been written into the verdict as required Upon further investigation it was discovered no not guilty verdict had been sent to the jury room at first the two forms having been given to the jury being for guilty only both had been signed

Judge King ordered Clerk Leo Shaeffer to prepare new forms one finding Brothers guilty and leaving space for filling in the amount and the other finding him not guilty

Within 15 minutes the jury was back with the verdict finding the defendant guilty and placing the amount at $13 781 the amount charged in the indictment

Shearer took exceptions to sending the jury out the second time and made the two guilty forms of verdict which were first sent out with the jury as a part of the record

After returning the second verdict the jury was polled at Shearers request and all answered they favored the guilty verdict

Brothers had contended he did not use any of the funds for himself but that he paid the money deposited in his personal account at the Market Exchange bank for bills of the division

Brothers joined the conservation division in 1925 the same year he left the employ of the Erie railroad in Marion He worked for the Erie here six years as a yard brakeman and prior to that time had been employed by the Big Four railroad and as a representative of an insurance company He came to Marion in 1919

Brothers who is married and father of three children, lives in Columbus

BLUM BIDS FOR U. S. FRIENDSHIP

Premier-Designate To Head French Delegation to League Council at Session June 16.

ALSO COURTING BRITISH

Attempts To Effect Close Diplomatic Alliance with Britain in Ethiopian Controversy.

By The Associated Press

PARIS, May 23—Leon Blum bidding for better American and British friendship, has decided to inaugurate personally the foreign policy of France's incoming "people's front" government, informed sources said today.

The premier-designate, Socialist leader of the leftist bloc that comes to power in the new chamber of deputies next month, intends to head the French delegation to the June 16 session of the League of Nations council

Informed sources said he would attempt to form a close Franco-British diplomatic front at the special meeting called in the Italo-Ethiopian controversy.

Delbos for Foreign Post

Yvon Delbos, Radical-Socialist deputy and minister of justice in the present coalition cabinet of Premier Albert Sarraut, was considered a likely candidate for the Quai D'Orsay post in the new ministry.

Former Premier Herriot's refusal to take over the foreign ministry was accepted generally now as final. Associates of Herriot said he was instead an official candidate for the presidency of the chamber of deputies.

Blum, after conferring with diplomats on France's future foreign policy, addressed an appeal to the United States in a radio address last night for better understanding between the American and French peoples.

Cites Will of People

"The task of the coming French government is to put into effect the pondered will of the majority of the French people. I submit that this French will is closely related to the will of the American people," he said.

Without "harking back to ancient memories," he avoided direct reference to France's defaulted war debt to America, but declared, "I insist on the respective positions of our two peoples in regard to the most pressing problems of today."

SOCIALIST KEYNOTER HITS AT ROOSEVELT

repeat the mistake of 1916 when they supported Wilson because he kept us out of the war.

"We want a unified and inclusive party but only on a Socialist basis."

Mayor Daniel W. Hoan of Milwaukee, a keynoter, voiced the opinion that "some labor leaders who believe that labor's interests can best be served in 1936 by supporting Roosevelt are absolutely mistaken in this policy."

It was recalled that President William Green of the A. F. of L. has personally expressed hope for the reelection of President Roosevelt, while John L. Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers, is an organizer of "labor's non-partisan league," formed to take an active part in the campaign for Mr. Roosevelt.

Meanwhile Republicans and Democrats continued to hammer at each other. In a radio address Rep. Halleck, Republican of Indiana, accused the new deal of "failures and false starts." Sen. Bulow, Democrat of South Dakota, making another broadcast, challenged the new deal's critics to put forward substitutes. He praised the farm program particularly, saying it gives agriculture "the dawn of a grander day."

Already plans have been made for the Republican trek to Cleveland for the national convention June 9. The Kansas delegation will leave for Ohio June 3 to set up headquarters from which activities in behalf of Gov. Alf M. Landon will be directed. Landon said he had "made no plans" to go along.

The Illinois Republican state convention at Peoria yesterday officially indorsed the candidacy of Col. Frank Knox of Chicago.

Nevada Democrats meet today to select six delegates who are expected to be pledged to support President Roosevelt at Philadelphia.

Germany Extends War Preparations Into All Branches of National Life

Germany aims to have every part of the nation ready for the next war; this is the first of two stories discussing preparedness plans.

By M. R. WERTENBAKER
Associated Press Writer

BERLIN, May 23 — Side by side with rearmament, Germany is pointing her economic and social forces toward the next war.

A peacetime plan, untried on such a vast scale, has been sketched and an office created in the war ministry to carry it through.

The idea is called "Wehrwirtschaft." It is designed to gear the entire nation to support the fighting forces by closely coordinating and channeling all phases of life.

It calls for a long reach into every nook and cranny of the nation's cupboard.

Appeals reminiscent of war days are being made to housewives. They are being asked to organize their homes to such mathematical precision that waste will be banished.

One typical campaign requests that empty toothpaste tubes be saved, so the metal can be reused.

This preparation for the next war, which German military men say probably will be a "totalitarian war"—or one wherein every able bodied person and everything the nation possesses will be utilized, constitutes "Wehrwirtschaft."

Army Man Lists Duties

The fundamentals as described by Major Kurt Hesse in the "Military Science Review" published by the ministry of war, are these.

(1)—The spiritual and mental preparation of all those who have to do with industry and business. This means, says Major Hesse, the mobilizing of men to the idea of sacrifice in the interest of the public good and the renunciation of some of life's necessities during war time. This task can be fulfilled only if public servants, who are responsible for economic preparedness, have the support of all, and especially of the leaders of business.

(2)—Statistical preparation of the possibilities and necessities during war. One of the characteristics of the situation in 1914, Major Hesse asserts, was the failure to take stock of raw materials on hand and those that would be needed.

(3)—The securing of nourishment through increasing home production, and in building up reserves, of cereals, animal foods, fats, oils and meat; the regulation of imports with an eye to possible war needs and the making of contracts beforehand with foreign importers for war-time supplies; the equipment of agriculture with machinery to replace manual labor, always scarce when farmers go off to fight.

Power Plants Included

(4)—The management of industrial raw materials by specific plan for war-time so that all domestic materials can be fully used and foreign materials be obtained by contracts.

(5)—The management of energy, more especially of electricity, by coordinating plants and power lines.

(6)—The organization of industry by preparing and classifying plants capable of making war materials. The training of specialists who would be on the job when needed.

(7)—Mobilization of individuals. This, Major Hesse explains, includes the classification of men as to whether they are to be used immediately in the army or whether they can remain in industry or on the land one year, or longer. It includes a census beforehand of the number of specialists likely to be needed in all lines and the number of men whose tasks can be taken over by women and children. Three million men, Major Hesse says, were taken into the army in 1914. The result was a drop in industrial and agricultural production.

Traffic, Money and Spies

(8)—The regulation of traffic so that it is able to handle military and normal needs simultaneously.

(9)—The organization of trade, so that exact information is on hand as to those who deal in raw, half and fully manufactured materials. Major Hesse recalls the importance trade with the smaller neutral countries assumed in World war years.

(10)—War finance preparation either through taxes or borrowing or both and an expenditure organization. Germany went into the war in 1914 financially well armed but poor use was made of the resources, the major believes.

(11)—The protection of industry from espionage, sabotage and air raids.

Private Capital Favored

A long-term view of economic preparedness, says Major Hesse, is favored by the army. This runs counter to some tendencies within the nazi party which press for immediate action. By "long-term," the major says, the army means a plan that conserves domestic raw materials, for example, as much as possible during peace time and substitutes foreign materials.

Other authorities on the subject say business and industry must have leadership as strong as the army's in order to work out the scheme. Private enterprise, however, apparently is to be left untouched as present intentions do not call for nationalization, in the army's view, of any industries, not even munitions factories.

WOMAN'S BODY FOUND

By The Associated Press

CINCINNATI, O., May 23— Police of southwestern Ohio and northern Kentucky sought today to determine the identity of a woman whose body was found in the Great Miami river at Hamilton, north of here last night.

Loads weighing a ton can be handled by one man with a new wheelbarrow having two rubber tired wheels.

These wage-earning women, sewing gas masks in a German factory, are typical of the effort which the entire nation is being coached to make as preparedness for a possible war which would tax every resource of the reich.

CARRIERS FILE SUIT TO BAR RATE CUTS

23 Eastern Railroads Take ICC Order Before Federal Tribunal.

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK, May 23—Twenty-three eastern railroads filed federal suit today to enjoin the interstate commerce commission from enforcing orders establishing new rates of 2 cents a mile for coach and 3 cents for Pullman cars.

The lower rates were ordered by the commission Feb. 28 last to become effective June 2.

In the suit filed today the companies said the present basic fares of 3.6 cents a mile for pullman and coaches, with an additional pullman surcharge, are still "just and reasonable" and should be maintained.

The companies contended the commission has no legal authority to enforce the new rates, that the new rates are "less than compensatory," that lower rates would prevent the railroads from meeting competition of other means of transportation, and that there is no warrant for reductions at this time.

BLACK LEGION DEATH STIRS DETROIT POLICE

which sought political control, was investigated 14 months ago. Its regalia, as disclosed in that investigation, was the same as the skull-and-cross-bones decorated hoods and robes found yesterday in the homes of the black legion members here.

The black legion here also had a political flavor. Its meeting hall was rented in the name of the Wolverine Republican league. Several men in public life are members of that league. They denied any knowledge of the black legion, and expressed horror at the Poole slaying.

Four Named

The four who confessed the killing, Police Inspector John I. Navarre said, were: Harvey Davis, 38, a "colonel" in the society; Dayton Dean, 46, Irvin Lee and Urban Lipps.

With them when Poole was slain, Navarre said, were George C. Johnson, Paul R. Edwards and Edgar Baldwin.

Navarre said Dean confessed he fired two shots into Poole's body, that Lee had admitted firing at the victim, and that Davis had confessed he directed the shooting, while Lipps admitted he was a witness.

"I planned the expedition only as a whipping party," Prosecutor McCrea quoted Davis as saying in a formal statement following his confession. The "party" was planned, Davis said, because two relatives of Poole's wife had said he beat and kicked her. These relatives, Hershell Gill and Lowell Rushing, are among the 16 men held.

McCrea said Dean admitted shooting Poole, who had been lured to the lonely spot by a ruse, as Poole knelt before his captors.

"I shot him; I thought it was my job, according to our discussion," McCrea said Dean told him.

Davis and Dean are employes of the Detroit public lighting commission. Most of the others held are factory workers.

Navarre said 34 other members of the organization were being sought as having attended a meeting May 12 of the "Wolverine Republican League," at which the abduction of Poole was planned.

Headquarters of the league (not connected with the Republican party), were raided yesterday and a dozen firearms, a large quantity of ammunition, two daggers and several black robes and hoods, bearing a skull and crossbones insignia, were confiscated.

Asked About Plans

Davis asked the members at the meeting what they planned to do, Navarre related.

"Some of the boys," the inspector quoted Lipps as saying, "yelled 'let's beat him up' and others yelled 'let's stripe him'—that means tar and feather him."

Lee and Dean volunteered to bring Poole to the meeting, which they did, by pretending they wanted to get him to play on a baseball team, Navarre said. Members were told to get in their cars and follow Davis' car.

Because of confusion that resulted when a drawbridge over which the motorcade had to pass to get to the scene of the party was raised only two cars actually reached the scene, Navarre said.

"After they all had a drink Davis ordered Poole pulled out of the car, saying, 'Poole, you beat up your wife for the last time,'" the inspector related.

Fires with Two Guns

Navarre said Dean opened fire with two revolvers.

"I didn't even have to aim. I was only five or six feet away," Dean was quoted as saying.

Navarre said some of the men held had expressed fear that their statements would lead to reprisals by other members of the black legion, which they told him had branches throughout the country. They refused to name other cities in which the organization is active, saying its motto was "secrecy always," he said.

LAST CLARIDON VET WILD WEST PIONEER

of frontier model Colt six revolvers and a Bowie knife with which the riders were armed. All riders were instructed not to stand and fight, but to run away whenever that was possible. For that reason they were mounted on horses of greater speed and endurance than the Indian stock.

Only one relay station for the change of horses laid half way between the terminals. The distance of 100 miles was covered each night between sunset and dawn. Riding was done at night as it was easier to get through the Indian menace. Two men always rode together. To this duty young Adams was promptly assigned and through four years he made the nightly runs, keeping his scalplock and living to tell about it.

Meets Famous Scout

At Fort Dodge and Hays City Adams became closely associated with "Billy" Cody, who was a year his junior. At that time Cody had not won his later day sobriquet of "Buffalo Bill." He was at times a rider for the pony express, but soon became a scout for cavalry troops stationed at points throughout the turbulent Indian country.

At the end of his enlistment Adams returned to Ohio and married Miss Belle Austin of Claridon. Soon the lure of the West became too strong and he returned to the Fort Dodge country with his bride to build themselves a sod house and pioneer. They made the journey in a covered wagon carrying their household possessions and remained in Kansas while it was merging from its bloody feud days. Returning to Claridon, Adams has been a resident there many years.

A number of years ago the coming of "Buffalo Bill" and his Wild West show to Marion was blazoned throughout the countryside. The pictures of the noted showman, the overland trail coach, the Indians, etc., spread themselves in a riot of color on every barnside to the interest of thousands and especially Martin Adams. Quietly he talked to James F. Ullom, the present county humane officer, of his long friendship with "Buffalo Bill" and his desire to see him. As a result they agreed to visit the show together and give the veterans of the plains a chance to review the old days.

The day the show appeared Adams and Ullom timed their arrival at the grounds so there might be opportunity for a visit before the opening of the performance.

A Dramatic Reunion

Mr. Ullom describes the reunion as like that of a couple of schoolboys who have been separated for a time and while each is throbbing with emotion neither wishes to betray it in an emotional way. "Buffalo Bill" was puttering about outside the big top inspecting such things as may have needed attention when they approached. When he turned to his visitors, he saw a familiar face wreathed in broad good natured smiles and eyes from the unforgotten past beaming through the mists of the years. With those smiles the idol of the American youth of the day could doubtless hear again the rhythmatic pounding of the hoofs of the pony express; the purling of the waters of the soft Wahita and see the billowing sweep of the buffalo grass in the evening breeze; the sunsets and dawns of the departed days of boyhood. The bronzed hand of the old showman reached for that of the friend of his youth.

"Hello Mart."

"Hello Bill."

That was all. Then memory brought her pictures from the long galleries of time and garlanded the days that were gone with the sweetness and perfumes of retrospect until the bugle called "Buffalo Bill" to duty and his friends were seated where they might enjoy the scenes from the old west to their fullest.

The bones of Indian and paleface are now mingled in a communion of peace where the races fought for supremacy on the western plains.

The hoof beats of the pony express are but an echo of the past like the ring of the pioneer's axe in the primitive wilderness.

Daring men with great birds of the air now carry on the tradition, "The mail must go through," for which brave men died.

The life of Martin Adams is a living thread through a century of human achievement never equaled. The veteran is proud of the splendor of the work his kind has performed. As he carries his tribute of spring bud and blossom to the resting places of departed comrades, he looks to the western horizon, to the dying sun, and listens—not for taps but for the reveille. Not for the solace of night, but for the song of the new day.

TOWNSEND PROBERS PONDER NEXT MOVE

Uncertain Whether He Should Be Tried Before House or Case Given to Court.

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, May 23 — A harried house investigating committee was deadlocked today over action to be taken against Dr. F. E. Townsend, old age pension leader, for his continued defiance.

That Dr. Townsend should be cited for contempt, most members agreed, but on the question of whether he should be tried before the bar of the house or the case turned over to the courts there was a decided difference of opinion.

There were indications that the rush for an early adjournment of congress figured in committee consideration since a contempt trial probably would tie up the house for days.

At the same time committee members looked at records of persons cited for contempt who have been turned over to the courts and found that acquittals far out number convictions.

Several members said privately that they do not want to make a "martyr" out of Dr. Townsend and that angle must be given consideration in any steps taken.

With the committee still smarting from Dr. Townsend's dramatic walk-out and refusal to testify further, the doctor issued a statement from his Baltimore hotel room challenging the members to hail him before the house.

Fiery Rep. Hoffman, Republican of Michigan, asserted that certainly Dr. Townsend would be called before the house. Some other committee members were not so sure.

5,500 PORTSMOUTH WORKMEN ON STRIKE

lodges of the amalgamated called the strike. No strike vote was taken and it could not be determined immediately how many workers favored the strike.

"After almost a three-year fight in which every step was taken to keep within and use legislation passed that was fair to labor, the committee decided the drastic action was the only alternative to protect the organization and the rights of its members," said a statement prepared by J. P. Harris, secretary of the joint committee.

Say Firm Won't Comply

Harris said the company has refused to comply with rulings of the national labor relations board.

"Amalgamated members," Harris said, "have been instructed definitely against any form of violence. They are standing on their constitutional rights to strike and conduct peaceful picketing."

The demand for disbandment of the department councils was the prime point of the dispute. The national labor relations board, after a hearing in Cincinnati last November, ordered the company to "desist coercing the Amalgamated, abandon any support of the 17 councils, and reinstate one employe, William Patton." Patton had been dismissed, the Amalgamated asserted, because he refused to join a council.

But the company refused to recognize the authority of the labor board, contending the Wagner labor relations act, which established it, was unconstitutional.

Wheeling Officials Silent

Wheeling Steel officials made no further statement and took no action on the board's order.

Amalgamated officials presented demands for employe elections at the board hearing to determine the workers' choice of a bargaining agency, asserting the company discriminated against the union and helped organize the department councils.

The strike call came upon this Ohio river city suddenly but quietly. First 150 coke workers left their jobs. Department by department, others left.

When a new shift came on at 11 p. m., pickets notified the men of the strike. They turned around and went home or joined a growing crowd of cheering, good-humored men and women.

The same happened when another shift came on at midnight.

Crowd Grows To 2,000

By that time the crowd had grown to 2,000. Six deputy sheriffs arrived to keep order, but their presence was almost unnecessary. There was little indication of possible violence and the crowd acted as if it were on a picnic.

Joseph K. Gaither, vice president in charge of the Amalgamated's industrial division, arrived early today from Pittsburgh and immediately called a meeting of officials of all Amalgamated lodges.

Meanwhile, 200 pickets sleepily patrolled the streets surrounding the plant in suburban New Boston.

SHAKEUP IN BRITISH GOVERNMENT LOOMS

Colonial Secretary Thomas Resigns in Dispute Over Budget Leakage Scandal.

By The Associated Press

LONDON, May 23—The resignation of Colonial Secretary J. H. Thomas in Britain's budget leakage scandal— the third desertion from Prime Minister Stanley Baldwin's original cabinet—raised a probability today of a major shakeup in the ministry.

The prime minister went to his country residence, Chequers, for the week-end, there to deliberate long-expected changes.

Political sources predicted a cabinet turn-over which would carry back into office Sir Samuel Hoare former foreign secretary who was the first of this ministry to withdraw under fire.

In addition to filling Thomas' place at the colonial office, Baldwin faced a possibility of having to find a successor for Viscount Monsell first lord of the admiralty, who was reported anxious to retire at Whitsuntide, which falls next week.

The three-man budget tribunal continued its private study of evidence in the investigation as to whether shrewd calculations or tips from the cabinet room precipitated a rush for insurance against increased income and tea taxes before the budget was announced April 21 to the house of commons.

The commission concluded its hearings Wednesday — the day Thomas' resignation was presented—and was expected to publish its report to parliament next week.

Testimony was introduced that two intimate friends of Thomas, one of whom bought the cabinet member a house, made $98,600 by insuring in advance against the tax increases.

Thomas himself appeared before the tribunal twice to declare steadfastly he never disclosed any official secrets to anyone at any time.

RETAIL MERCHANTS WILL MEET MONDAY

Question of Wednesday Afternoon Closing Will Be Considered.

Retail merchant members of the Marion Chamber of Commerce will meet at the Chamber headquarters Monday morning to discuss the setting of half holidays in local stores during the summer. The meeting has been called for 10:30 a. m.

The merchants also will set a uniform closing time for next Friday night, the eve of Memorial day.

Several merchants have indicated that they will close their stores on Wednesday afternoons during June, July and August, as has been done in former years.

MEETING IS CALLED TO MAP WPA PLANS

which is now being distributed, amounts to approximately $28,000. Since the pay of each worker is small virtually every dollar of the $55,000 that is poured into Marion every month is spent in local stores to maintain the workers and their families.

A similar WPA situation exists throughout the county on the various road projects sponsored by the county, officials have pointed out. A part of the funds the one-mill levy would have raised were to be allocated to the WPA program. The remainder was to go for poor relief.

The problem becomes more serious, officials said, because direct relief funds in the county are greatly depleted. The grant from the state becomes smaller and smaller each month and the county has been running out of relief money a week or 10 days before the end of the month.

W. D. Brown, secretary of the Chamber of Commerce, said it is hoped a number of suggestions and plans for financing the projects would result from the meeting Wednesday night. It is probable, he said, that a "ways and means" committee will be named to thresh out the plans presented. Director Haylor will be present.

R. T. Lewis, in an appeal for a good attendance at the meeting said, "We urge you to attend in the interest of our less fortunate citizens and we feel that it is an obligation on the part of each and every one of us to assist in solving this problem."

OPPOSE ASSESSMENTS

A delegation from Morgan, Tuscarawas and Stark counties carried the request to Washington. But congressmen remained uncertain how to comply with the plea.

The present railroad surcharge on sleeping and parlor car tickets is eliminated in the new fare schedule. This means a reduction of one-third on Pullman tickets. Pullman fares between Marion and Chicago will be reduced from $3.75 to $3.00. The present fare to New York City is $23.44, Mr. Nebergall said, and with the new schedule in effect the rate will be $13.05 in coaches and $18.55 in the Pullman cars.

The new passenger fares are the lowest in many years, the ticket agent said, and the reduction together with better economic conditions is expected to result in a substantial increase in passenger business.

INSPECTOR WARNS AGAINST PRACTICE

Custom of Vendors in Asking Exemption To Be Wiped Out.

A practice of sales tax vendors in Marion and elsewhere in the state in using their metal identification plates to gain tax exemptions on their own private purchases has come to the attention of the Ohio tax commission, Charles L. Elicker, tax examiner here, reported today.

Mr. Elicker said he has learned of a number of cases of the practice here and that immediate steps will be taken to break it up.

As an example of what is being done Mr. Elicker said a clothing merchant might go to a produce house and purchase a chicken, displaying his identification plate and demanding that he be excused from paying the sales tax. Many dealers are under the impression that this is permiseable, the examiner said.

Mr. Elicker emphasized that the metal plate is for use only in buying prepaid tax receipts from agents of the state treasurer and in no case is to be used to gain exemption from the tax. All who are granted exemptions are required to make out certificates of exemption, he added.

BY DR. R. S. COPELAND

Overzealous.

This is the time of the year when the lure of warm weather calls out enthusiastic baseball fans and all those who enjoy other outdoor sports. Unfortunately, overzealous activity often leads to painful disability.

An untrained person is liable to have that condition medically known as "myositis," more commonly referred to as "charleyhorse." Perhaps at some time or other you experienced this disabling trouble. Charleyhorse is a slang phrase used for soreness of a muscle caused by violent and sudden muscular contraction. This sudden exertion may lead actually to a rupture of some of the muscle fibers. It is indeed a painful affliction.

The rupture of the muscle may produce the formation of a lump. It may take anywhere from a month or more for this swelling to disappear. Sometimes the resulting inflammation may damage and even form a scar in the muscle. This may be sufficient to interfere with the normal motion of the affected limb.

Follows Exposure

Myositis, or inflammation of the muscle, sometimes follows undue exposure to cold, drafts, wet or dampness. Some persons are especially susceptible to this disorder. Those who are victims of gout and rehumatic disorders are particularly liable to attacks of myositis.

Though any muscle of the body may be involved, it most commonly occurs in the muscles of the arm or forearm, leg, thigh and back. In the mild form of myositis the pain is moderate, disappearing within a short time.

But in more severe cases, where there is actual rupture of muscle fibers, tendons or ligaments, the pain is severe and prolonged. At times it may be so marked as to require the administration of an opiate. Confinement to bed for several weeks is not unusual.

Gentle massage of the muscles and the application of heat are beneficial. As a rule massage should be given twice a day. Counter irritation of the surface over the sore muscle is another form of treatment. It is best accomplished by rubbing some liniment into the skin over the painful and inflamed tissues.

Prevention Easier

There is an old-fashioned method of treatment which is still pretty commonly used. I refer to the practice of ironing the painful parts with a hot flat iron. Place a thick piece of flannel or muslin over the skin and carefully rub the iron over the pad.

Of course, the prevention of "charleyhorse" or muscle soreness is far easier than the cure. Trained athletes know the possibility of this accident. They always avoid sudden strain of the muscles, especially when they have not been recently used. This preparation is daily used by the baseball pitcher, who carefully "warms up" before starting the game.

As weather improves and the out-of-doors beckons, bear in mind that moderation in exercise is the wisest course to pursue. When the muscles become limbered up you may increase your activity, but until then guard against sudden exertions.

The Stars Say--

For Sunday, May 24

SUNDAY'S HOROSCOPE is particularly auspicious for all pertaining to the church and ecclesiastics as well as for social and cultural engagements.

Those whose birthday it is may anticipate a year of real progress in their affairs with a stabilizing of the fortunes and an increase in the value of real possessions, tenancies and substantial holdings.

A child born on this day may be studious, earnest, trustworthy, industrious, practical and thrifty. It may also be socially popular.

For Monday, May 25

MONDAY'S ASTROLOGICAL forecast, although showing lively and enterprising conditions, with some satisfaction in employment, yet holds omens of disintegrating and detrimental experiences or events.

Those whose birthday it is may be prepared for a year in which sudden and unforeseen situations may arise, causing upheaval or disintegration. Make all changes with precaution and be wary with new contracts and documents.

A child born on this day may be active and enterprising, but impetuous, ardent and prone to take chances which may prove disastrous and cause great unsettlement and worry.

Church On Trial

A SERMONETTE

By REV. HOWARD L. OLEWILER
Pastor, the First Presbyterian Church.

THESE culings from an article by Adolph Keller of Geneva on "The Three-fold Trial of the European Churches" and reprinted in a Presbyterian publication, "Monday Morning," are food for thought for all Christians.

Mr. Keller says "Christian Europe is today living in a state of tension which can only be called apocalyptical . . . Much has fallen under the judgment of God and must disappear. A new age is coming: we do not see it, but we feel: 'The . . . Lord is near!'"

The author presents the three-fold trial which many of the churches of the continent are undergoing as follows:

"Trial by Poverty: In Transylvania, Yugoslavia, Poland, there are pastors who must support their families on $5 to $10 a month . . . welfare organizations on the verge of giving up . . . Waldensians in Italy and Presbyterians in Transylvania trembling for their evangelical schools . . . 20 students in the evangelical faculty at Warsaw . . . probably will have to give up their schooling because they do not have enough to eat . . . The French Protestant Federation reports . . . many parishes had to be given up because the population has moved away in search of work . . . Letters and appeals from Russian Christians are heart-rending.

"Trial by Cassarism: In many countries the state constitutes the hostile power which threatens the life of the church . . . In Russia . . . the 'party' has decreed the destruction of religion. Only eight remain of the 300 evangelical pastors. Hundreds of Orthodox priests and 26 evangelical pastors have been executed. The Bible may not be printed or imported. Religious instruction to persons under 15 years is forbidden . . . In Germany . . . the question is concentrated on the hostile forces inherent in the totalitarian doctrine of the power of the state, which wants to swallow the church whole . . . In Austria the authorities assure the evangelicals that confessional freedom and equality will be upheld . . . but in practice things look very different, especially in the more remote towns and in the rural sections.

"Trial by Spiritual Crisis: Protestantism recognizes now how much of the world has penetrated the church; once again it seeks the purity of evangelical teaching and of evangelical life.

"What do we need in this time of trial? The feeling and practice of evangelical solidarity . . . vigorous participation in the study of the questions which will arise concerning the relation of church and state . . . Your prayers, your witness, your uttermost understanding of our distress . . . No other message and no other salvation than that which is promised to us all in the gospel of Jesus Christ."

Just Things

BY EDNA S. DUTTON

Knowledge

SHE is interested in the birds bees and their kindred, is amazed, and at time awed by nature in the raw, and until this week thought she really was making some progress so far as bird-life was concerned. Her course in bird study included the purchase of a couple of bird domiciles and it was one of these that put her in a dither as to just how far she had traveled via the bird housing project. The said birdhouse was delivered during the absence of the family and left on the porch by the temporary salesman. The owner, (she didn't know it was her property) viewed it with a wary eye, guessed it was something the family had left out, and went her way. The morning light afforded a better opportunity to look the stack of wood over and she guessed it was some part of the equipment a carpenter used, a super-plane, or its ilk. Hoisting it about she discovered a sort of a porch, a small hole that might admit a martin, and then came the dawn. Porch, house, door, and —birdhouse. And who was it that wrote about the three men of Hindostan who went to see the elephant?

Salesmanship

HE'S a magazine salesman and although this is his first route, it's our three guesses that he will go places. In addition to a pleasing personality he has a most affable way of adjusting his plans to suit his customers. "Would you like to buy a copy of such and such a magazine?" naming a popular woman's publication. Oh, I'll buy one once in a while, but not re... we parried. "Well," he smiled, "if you'll just take it for two months it'll suit me fine." Lacking a couple of pennies in change we commented on the fact. Seeing the nec...ity of his customer halting business for and a trip to the cashier's window for change, he announced that he'd "fix that." Pocketing the change on hand he tripped away with the announcement he'd be back with the next issue. There's a trophy at the end of the two months, we gleaned, so we're a subscriber for the nonce at least.

The 400 items include such old favorites as "When You and I Were Young Maggie," "Rocked in the Cradle of the Deep," with the original manuscript, and all the famous songs of Stephen Foster. The catalogue is indicative of the increasing interest of collectors in Nineteenth Century American Music and provides, for the first time full bibliographical data upon issue points, plate marks and publishers' addresses.

Marion Club Hears Cleveland Artist At Guest Day Party

ART is not a physical reproduction of something that exists but a visual realization of a subject, William J. Eastman, Cleveland artist and instructor at the Cleveland School of Art, told members of the Art club and their guests in an informal talk last night at Hotel Harding.

The occasion was the club's annual guest day party, and brought together more than 40 guests for the lecture and social hour which followed.

Mrs. T. H. Sutherland, president of the club, welcomed the guests and in a brief talk reviewed the year's activities of the organization.

Theme of Talk

Mr. Eastman spoke on "The Relation Between the Modern Point of View and the Old Masters." He gave an interesting demonstration of how a picture is built, and also used a number of illustrations to bring out his subjects. The point of view from the artist's standpoint is changing, partly due, he said to the rapid and authentic development of photography. Earlier art, he explained was devoted to reproductions of subjects and events, and the generation as a whole was concerned with facts rather than emotion. "Art," he said, "does not deal with the photographic reproduction of an idea, but appeals with the artist's interpretation of the subject." The artist paints what he feels, he stated.

In discussing the modern trend of art Mr. Eastman said we do not like it because it is not what we have been used to, but in fairness to the artists, he asked that some effort be made to understand it.

Baskets of flowers carried out a decorative note throughout the ballroom and on the walls were Medici prints which interested the guests following the lecture. The prints were explained informally by Miss Mabel Wheatley.

Refreshments were served from a table at one end of the ballroom where Mrs. Sutherland and Miss Ann Meraness presided. Spring flowers formed an attractive centerpiece and yellow tapers in silver candelabra completed the decorative note.

List of Guests

Guests included Mrs. Glenna Clevenger of Worthington, Miss June McConkey of Columbus, Antony S. Stokes of Ipswich, England, Robert Patterson of Cleveland, Mr. Eastman, Mrs. Paul Knauss, Mrs. J. H. Watters, Mrs. Charles Mooney, Miss Ruth Kleinmaier, Miss Leah Cline, Mrs. J. H. Eymon, Mrs. Gertrude Kling, Mrs. A. T. Allen, Miss Jeanette Powers, Mrs. Ray Gatewood, Mrs. E. G. NEW METHOD USED TO FLUSH RADIATORS

Galleher Station at High and Church Street Specializes in Work.

A new scientific method of radiator flushing is one of the services offered by the Hi Speed gasoline service station at East Church and High streets operated by L C Galleher

The method used by the Galleher station is highly effective and takes only a little of the motorist's time Mr Galleher declares that flushing the radiator of a motor car is nearly as important as cleaning out the accumulation of sludge from the crankcase after a season of winter driving This is because rust and gummy substances collect in the radiator interfering with the proper circulation of water As a result motors have a tendency to run hot in summer driving

Germans have invented a sound amplifier to be mounted in the cab of a motorbus or truck to pick up signals from following vehicles so that drivers will hear them

Oilskin gloves have been invented to be worn over other gloves to keep them dry in rain

SURVEY SHOWS NEED OF PROPER CAR CARE

Auto Association Warns Against Neglect of Important Details.

WASHINGTON D C May 23 Despite the fact that there is on the average one filling station or garage for every mile and a half of surfaced highway, more than one million drivers ran out of gasoline last year the American Automobile association reported today

The national motoring body's statement was made on the basis of an analysis of emergency road service reports from 12 000 official garages and service stations under contract to serve A.A.A. members throughout the country The statement continued

Our study shows that the majority of motoring misfortunes occur as a result of failure of many car owners to give their cars proper care That a startlingly large number of drivers continue to operate on tires worn down beyond the proper margin of safety is indicated by the fact that approximately 8 500 000 tires went flat during the past year

Other motoring mishaps and predicaments taking place during the year included 800 000 cars stuck in the mud or snow, 4 500 000 with serious breakdowns requiring tow in to the repair shop 5 400 000 cases of ignition trouble, including systems drowned out in rainy weather, 3 200 000 cases of battery trouble 1 245 000 cars wrecked or off the road requiring crane service 2 000 000 cases of starter trouble including cold weather difficulties and 437,000 carburetor complaints

"While this list of motoring headaches looms large at first glance it should be remembered that they resulted from more than four hundred billion passenger miles of automobile operation and a large part of it is due to the fact that motorists have not yet been educated to the point where they take the requisite pains to have their cars in good condition at all times

This has a two fold effect it increases the costs of upkeep and at the same time delayed maintenance is a definite hazard to safe operation One of the effects of compulsory inspection of motor vehicle equipment under state or municipal supervision and in state and municipally operated garages would be to make motor owners more car care conscious and this psychological benefit is one of the reasons why the American Automobile association favors passage of motor vehicle inspection legislation everywhere

"Stork of the North" Buys Another Chevrolet

DR DAFOE IN NEW CHEVROLET

The world's most famous country doctor, Allan Roy Dafoe took delivery of a new Chevrolet last Saturday at Oshawa Ontario where he was a guest of R. S Mac Laughlin president of General Motors of Canada

It was the seventh automobile that the little doctor has had since 1916 when he graduated from the horse and buggy days At that time he paid $700 for his first Chevrolet

The stars have moved considerably in their cosmic courses since far off time—20 years ago—when Dr Dafoe began motoring to his patients which include the famous quintuplets over the incredibly tough roads in the north country 200 miles above Toronto

Doctor Hasn't Changed

His friends say that he has not changed a great deal since he began to drive an automobile The constant association with life and death has made him riper richer, in the human sense and now at 53 his warm brown eyes are as apt to be crinkled with humor as with the serious professional gravity of a medical man

Since the birth of the five baby girls at Callander in the dark hours before dawn of May 28 1934 the soft spoken doctor has been under the heady and blinding white light of American publicity and a world interest He has emerged without the loss of his innate kindliness toward his fellow man his high ethical code of the physician who permits no Lorelei of gold to sing him from his mapped course

Dr Dafoe examined with interest his new car its shining modern contours the Ontario license plate D 70 that has become as well known in this section the small green cross that designates the M D

He climbed inside and regarded with satisfaction the completeness of the driver's compartment the formidable appearing electric defroster of the windshield that must function at 40 below zero in blizzards of the bleak north country as he answers sick calls He made an inquiry about the car heater and how to operate it he turned the small button until it flashed red and put a small hand down to test the degree of heat

He tried out the cigar lighter and turnable ash tray and wrinkled his large forehead as he looked at the electric clock on the door of the glove box

Then he settled back to enjoy the ride

The car breezed along in the competent hands of a former Canadian army colonel gently riding on its machine age knees easy to control with its hydraulic brakes

'Stork of the North'

It entered a street filled with children The brakes performed efficiently and the warning blast of the horn sent them scampering to the curb The doctor watched them with a smile that expressed his entire approval of children—he has helped bring 1,500 into the world Some writers call him the 'Stork of the North His field of endeavor is the Callander region that has become a mecca for automobile tourists More than 300 000 visited the birthplace of the Dionne quintuplets last summer Half a million are expected this summer The doctor has counted a thousand cars parked along the country road from every state in the nation from every province in Canada and from other countries over the world The road from Toronto to Callander is now all paved except a stretch of 35 miles good gravel The doctor expects this last link to be paved soon

He drives his car about 8 000 miles per year, nearly all of the mileage being run up on professional calls in his area.

A new hammer can be loaded with 50 double pointed tacks one of which is released from a magazine into place for driving when a trigger on the handle of the tool is pressed

CHIMNEY POTS SOLD BY MARION COMPANY

Add Distinctive Note to Residences as Well as Being Money Savers.

Chimney pots which not only add an attractive note to the architectural lines of a residence but are of great value as a money saver, are among the items handled at the North Greenwood street plant of Baltauf & Schlientz Inc, Marion building supply dealers

The pots made by the Universal Sewer Pipe Corp of Cleveland come in a variety of colors and styles. To some houses they are an absolute necessity to complete the architectural motif but they will add a distinctive note to any house in breaking the sometimes plain and ugly lines of a chimney top. Besides this they go a long way in preventing damage to chimneys from water and freezing which often leads to expensive repair bills They are made of well burned fire clay and shale combined and kiln-fired under high temperatures which makes them so hard and durable that they will last a life time

Beer and Beauty.

Some more joy is about to be crushed out of life, as beauty is squeezed out of beer.

Maybe the metaphor's mixed, but no will be the feelings of persons who read the latest ruling of the Ohio liquor board. Henceforth, the sobering board has ordered, beautiful women must be banished from beer and liquor advertisements—whether they're evening gowned or merely scantily clad.

According to Mrs. Edith McClure Patterson, woman member of the board, feminine pulchritude in beer advertisements may incite to overindulgence. If susceptible young girls glimpse the female form beside a bottle of pilsener or liquor, easily they might gather the implication that "you, too, can become beautiful if only—"

The belief that one could be contaminated or uplifted by advertisements was exploded long ago. Too many men found that buying the advertised collar didn't make them look like the man on the billboard.

Stopping the Rain.

From time to time, "stop Landon" movements have been chronicled in the news—only to die at birth. A new rumor has matured into print to the effect that Frank O. Lowden, former governor of Illinois, now is the hope of the anti-Landonites. Mr. Lowden, in Europe, is reported to have intimated by cable that he would accept the nomination but that he is in no sense a candidate.

In view of the latest Landon landslide in New Jersey—a victory which knocked the last prop from Sen. Borah's campaign—this fresh rumor would have its comic relief aspects if there were no serious implications behind it.

For instance, two years ago Republicans appeared to be staggering around, leaderless. They knew they did not like the new deal bondage, but on all hands there were plaints that there was no Moses to deliver them from the Egyptians. Within the last six months or so a star has risen in the firmament. Quietly and effectively the personality and accomplishments of Gov. Landon have rocketed him to the Republican forefront. Predictions freely are made that he will be nominated on anything from the second to the fourth ballot. Yet, "stop Landon" stories still clamor for newspaper space.

The phrase itself probably is deceiving. No bona fide Republican leader is interested in stopping Landon merely for the sake of frustrating his candidacy. Many of them, however, are interested in holding open the nomination until the party as a whole can determine which of the several candidates has the best chance to defeat President Roosevelt.

The Republican party has discovered in Gov. Landon a man with a strong popular appeal. Stopping him is rather like stopping the falling rain after having prayed for its coming. There remains, however, the possibility that some strong backing for some other candidate might be started if the nomination is not definitely assigned before the convention meets.

Candidate.

Gov. Lehman's sudden decision not to seek reelection in New York has set the political universe to buzzing. Behind the buzzing there is a sting.

The governor has been a grade A vote getter. He might have helped President Roosevelt to perform the essential duty of carrying his home state next November.

He will be coaxed to reconsider, and he might do so. But there are wheels within wheels which may make reconsideration difficult. There is, for instance, Postmaster General Farley.

Long ago it was known that Mr. Farley, with his eye on a presidential nomination in 1940, was considering running for governor of New York in 1936. It is not known for certain that Mr. Farley's ambition is about to burst into bloom, but evidence points that way.

Further developments will be awaited eagerly. Three Job Jim has set new standards as a vote getter for others. Gov. Lehman has set a record in New York as a vote getter for himself.

Would Farley do Mr. Roosevelt as much good as Lehman was able to do in 1932 and very likely could have done in 1936? For years, dramatists have been challenging dramatic critics to match wits with them on equal terms. Now, a political manager may try to show skill as a candidate, which amounts to almost the same thing.

If he were to get away with it, every political boss in the country might get the itch to run for something.

Something To Stody.

State assembly leaders have indicated they will continue to wait for something to turn up to help them get out of the relief predicament. Another stop-gap bill will be passed to meet the latest crisis.

There can be no quarrel with the assembly's reluctance to deal hastily with the long-term measure submitted by Gov. Davey. If the governor's ideas have merit, they still will be good at some later time when ther has been opportunity to study them.

In the meantime, however, the state will become more acutely aware than ever of a crying need for a permanent system of collecting and distributing relief funds. It is the same longing for stability which is causing the whole makeshift federal relief setup to be examined critically.

Ohio, however disturbed it may be by a chaotic and jerry-built relief system, merely is sharing the restlessness of other states and of the nation as a whole. The United States came up short against a stone wall when the depression thrust mass unemployment in its path. Without the machinery of relief and without a policy, it started to find a way around the obstacle. It still is searching.

Gov. Davey's proposal is one of many. In some parts, such as the unreasonable prejudice against trained workers, it is not worth considering. Its fundamental contention—that relief should be administered by a state commission on a basis of need—is admirable. Leaders of the assembly who must direct legislative action on the relief problem must not forget that Ohio is agreeable to more stop-gap action only if assured that it will be followed by some plan to put state relief on a more rational basis.

Beginning at the Beginning.

At the time Federal Judge Halsted L. Ritter was convicted in senate impeachment proceedings, hope was expressed that attention would be called to the problem of assuring judicial integrity and of dealing with lapses from grace. In contending he was impeached unconstitutionally and refusing to vacate his judicial chambers, former Judge Ritter reminds us that an important issue needs consideration.

Shortly after the conviction, Sen. McAdoo, contending impeachment was too cumbersome, proposed an additional method for bringing unfaithful judges to book. He would have complaints against federal judges go first to the attorney general who, if he decided further action were warranted, would present formal charges before a court of 10 senior judges of the circuit court of appeals, presided over by the chief justice of the court of appeals of the District of Columbia.

To Sen. McAdoo's evidently carefully considered proposal, two serious objections can be raised. In the first place, it would give to an appointed politician, the attorney general, power to press or withhold charges against judges. It hardly need be pointed out that such power readily might be wielded as a club against the judiciary by the executive arm of the government—thereby granting the executive what might in itself be an unconstitutional power.

Again, since the procedure of impeachment is set down so explicitly in the Constitution, the senator's proposal would appear to run directly counter to the aims of that document. Doubtless, the supreme court could not hold the proposal constitutional.

As has been suggested in many quarters, the McAdoo plan appears to be aimed at effects rather than causes. No human power can insure judicial purity, but the exercise of more care in making and approving appointments might help considerably. After the executive searchingly has canvassed the field to fill a vacancy, the senate would perform its duty more equitably if it did not, in its investigation of a candidate, wonder whether its patronage dispensing prerogatives were being injured.

The quality of the federal judiciary already is high. It might be raised farther, to the point of making impeachments even more rare, if a beginning were made at the beginning.

State Cooperation.

Furthering the significant trend of states toward cooperative action for solving their mutual problems, 27 states now propose to get together to study and better conditions in their penal institutions.

Particularly, states will concern themselves with raising of standards throughout their institutions. The betterment program will be directed chiefly at prison industries and at medical, educational, recreational, civic and social care of prisoners. Efforts also will be made to improve systems for classifying, releasing and paroling inmates as well as to raise the personnel standards in prison administration.

Since prison reform has been a subject of social agitation for more than a century, it hardly needs to be remarked that this latest attempt will be watched with great interest. Sociologists will hail any accomplishment that moves toward realizing social values. Taxpayers will welcome any advances toward efficient, money saving administration. Business men, particularly, will be glad to know that a searching study is being made of prison industries with a view toward "establishing fair competition between prison industry and free industry."

Member states will have to pass enabling legislation before their representatives are authorized to make any commitments for specific acts of cooperation, but that approval readily should be forthcoming. Once state legislators have cleared the way, it appears that a comprehensive attack upon prison problems will be possible. Meanwhile, it is refreshing to note that many states eagerly are grasping a chance to achieve progress through cooperation, in preference to federal coercion.

U. S. Court Burden May Be Lightened

Definite Proof That Matter Involved Exceeds $3,000 To Be Required of Plaintiffs in Future.

BY DAVID LAWRENCE
Copyright, 1936, by The Marion Star

WASHINGTON, May 22 — Almost unnoticed in the barrage of publicity attendant upon handing down of the decision in the Guffey case was the establishment by the supreme court of the United States this week of what appears to be a new rule, the effect of which may be to reduce the number of cases which may come before the federal courts for decision on constitutional questions.

Hereafter the complainant instead of the defendant must prove to the satisfaction of the federal court that the matter in controversy exceeds the sum or value of $3,000.

The old rule, which has been in effect for many years, made it necessary for the defendant—and in this instance it was the state of Indiana whose statute was being challenged—to prove to the court that the actual loss involved was too little to allow the federal courts to intervene.

Under the ruling which has just been reversed, the federal courts were more or less compelled to take jurisdiction in every case involving constitutional questions where there was merely an allegation that the amount in controversy exceeded $3,000 unless, of course, the defendant was able to prove this was not so.

It was possible under the old rule for parties to obtain a test of the constitutionality of a state law in a moot case. It could be done by what might be termed a collusive agreement between the complainant and the defendant to bring about a trial of the issue. The court will now inquire of its own motion into the facts concerning the taking of jurisdiction.

The new pronouncement will limit the number of cases because when it becomes necessary to prove actual damage resulting from the enforcement of a state law instead of merely alleging that the net worth of a business affected is more than $3,000, fewer cases will be brought to court.

It is not always possible to prove actual loss from the operation of a federal or state law before the statute goes into effect, though the complaining parties may be absolutely sure that damage in excess of $3,000 will result. The complainant isn't prevented from coming into court and contending that his business will be damaged, but he can no longer merely make the claim and leave it to the federal or state governments to prove through the district attorneys that this isn't going to happen.

Constitutional proceedings, therefore, are likely to be delayed until a statute comes into operation more fully and when damage has actually occurred. The new rule may work hardship in some instances, but, on the other hand, a complaining company which cannot satisfy a court that it is going to be damaged in excess of $3,000 has no right apparently to be cluttering up the federal courts with test suits, so many of which ultimately have to come to the supreme court for final decision anyway.

Chief Justice Hughes announced the new rule on behalf of a unanimous supreme court. The case at issue was an attack on the Indiana statute which dealt with rates that could be charged in retail installment sales. The dealer who brought the suit had not attempted through his attorneys to show that the damage would exceed $3,000 for the simple reason that the state of Indiana, in denying the allegation, did not submit any proof and heretofore it hasn't been necessary for the complaining company to do it.

Without deciding the merits of the Indiana law itself—though the circuit court of appeals had declared the law unconstitutional—the supreme court dismissed the suits for lack of jurisdiction. As the rule now has been interpreted by Chief Justice Hughes, the complaining company must show that its loss has amounted to more than $3,000 or that it is entirely prevented from doing business.

Glancing Backward

TEN YEARS AGO

It was Sunday, May 23, 1926.

Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Crevision entertained at dinner at their home on Miami street in honor of the birthday anniversary of Miss Bertha Gilmore.

Carl Baldauf, Robert Atkinson, Robert Weber and Catherine Westervelt were administered the sacrament of confirmation in the morning service at Emmanuel Lutheran church, conducted by the pastor, Rev. J. W. Schillinger.

Judge Charles L. Justice of Marion, officer of the grand lodge of Ohio, Knights of Pythias, gave the memorial address for Golden Shield lodge at Alger.

TWENTY YEARS AGO

It was Tuesday, May 23, 1916.

A furious battle raged between the French and the Germans all night long on the Verdun front. German troops were hurled forward against French positions, over a line 25 miles wide, winning at some points only to be thrown back by French counter-attacks.

Premier Asquith asked the British house of commons to vote a credit of $1,500,000,000 to carry on the war.

Daughters were born to Mr. and Mrs. Robert Harvey, Wallace and Park streets, and Mr. and Mrs. Merle Glass of Meadow street.

Mrs. George Hanley was given a miscellaneous shower at the C. B. Jolliff home on Windsor street by Miss Jane Redding and Miss Hazel Morrow.

A class of 28 was graduated from Richwood High school. It was the largest in the history of the school.

Evidence that city council was looking forward to erection of a city hall was seen after an ordinance was introduced to issue bonds in the sum of $20,000 to construct and furnish a city building.

Behind the News

Men and Affairs Under The Washington Spotlight.

BY PAUL MALLON

WASHINGTON, May 23—President Roosevelt has been having family troubles again; not personal ones, of course, but official. It is no secret that he has the most motley collection of officials with high blood pressure ever assembled under one governmental roof. Playing parent to a crowd of radicals, liberals, progressives, conservatives and reactionaries actually takes up more of his time than any other phase of the president business. The wonder of it is that he has been able to keep all but a few hundred of the inner squabbles from being fully aired in public.

For instance, he spent recently a portion of about fourteen consecutive days straightening out a hot inside scrap over the reappointment of David Lilienthal to the Tennessee Valley Authority. As a result, Mr. Lilienthal was appointed, considered and confirmed by the senate in about fourteen minutes, a process which usually requires at least three weeks.

In the end, the President thought he had settled the matter with a minimum of publicity, but he still has his fingers crossed. He keeps them that way.

Fixing

Mr. Lilienthal apparently meant nothing to Mr. Roosevelt, but Senator Norris was the man back-stage who was insisting on the reappointment. Lilienthal's term was to expire May 18. For three days prior thereto, Norris was a daily visitor at the White House.

Now, anything that Senator Norris wants from the new deal is ordinarily granted without question, but in this case his protege has been fighting constantly with another member of the TVA, Arthur Morgan. It was well understood by all concerned that if Lilienthal was reappointed, Morgan would probably resign.

To get around Morgan, a neat little arrangement was effected. Four days before Mr. Lilienthal was nominated, Norris engineered a secret meeting of the senate agriculture committee. He induced the committee to approve the nomination and to authorize him to present a favorable report on it whenever it was made.

Thus, if you will look at the Congressional Record of senate proceedings for May 18, you will find that the Lilienthal nomination was received from the White House in one paragraph, favorably reported from the senate agriculture committee in next paragraph and confirmed without discussion in the third.

It takes good fixing to do things like that.

Soother

In this highly extraordinary manner, Mr. Lilienthal was put back in office for nine more years before any opposition had an opportunity to arise. But that settled only half the row. The other half was Mr. Morgan. His daily visits to the White House began the day of the senate coup and continued for three days thereafter.

What went on between the President and Mr. Morgan will probably forever remain a secret between them. There is no reason why Mr. Roosevelt should tell and Mr. Morgan is habitually speechless. As White House newsmen express it, Mr. Morgan "would not tell you whether today is Saturday."

However, the President felt sufficiently confident of himself as a soother of ruffled brows to announce before the third visit that the published thoughts about Mr. Morgan retiring were utter figments of reportorial imagination. Thus, after two weeks of arduous labor, the TVA situation was left just where it was when the fight started.

Choice

It can only be repeated as a rumor, but some well informed insiders have been talking also about the possibility that Interior Secretary Ickes left not one, but two resignations on Mr. Roosevelt's desk last week. They say one was a long statement of Mr. Ickes' position, winding up as a resignation, and the other a terse, simple resignation. Mr. Roosevelt was invited to pick the one he wanted, and he chose neither. While this information cannot be fully guaranteed, it is an incontrovertible fact that Mr. Roosevelt has lately been very busy trying to unruffle Mr. Ickes' brow, among the many others.

New York Notes

O. O. McIntyre's Diary of Fact, Fancy and Folks.

NEW YORK, May 23—Outside my window like wind blown leaves, shifting evening shadows are piling up that black mystery we call night. An established and valued friend, so the telephone informs me, has with a patient little sigh drifted out into the fathomless void.

Almost as I write, a clear, cold star twinkles forth in a sort of new-found ecstasy. All about, as though catching its prisms, squares of light pop into effulgence in a dozen spires. I like to think it is symbolical of the friend I have lost and the sudden afterglow he has achieved.

One releases old friends from their mortal husks with greater pang in serener years. Nothing is truer than that precious friendships are more difficult as the years crowd down. Smollet once sighed: "The tragedy of middle age is that we begin to lose old friends and cannot make new."

And I have heard of a fun-loving New Yorker who is turning to complete solitude. He has leased a country place 20 miles from Capetown, just because it's so far away. Here he expects to putter about a garden, rock on a sweep of verendah and meditate on the blessed promises. Fed up at 44.

So many excellent newspapermen have had their journalistic genesis in Denver. In the hurry of writing, I think of Courtney Ryley Cooper, Ford Frick, Damon Runyon, Burns Mantle, Bide Dudley and, of course, many more that escape me. I have often wondered what journalistic niche I would be occupying had I taken the trail to Denver. The famous Robert Paine, now editor emeritus of a chain of newspapers, called me to his office one day to offer the editorship of a then struggling sheet called the Denver Express. It was a temptation, for I was only 24 and it was release from copy desk slavery. But two weeks later instead I came to New York. What a part decision plays in our lives!

Next to New York, the city that strikes me as having more newspaper glamour than any other is San Francisco. I believe a check-up would show a surprising percentage of the crack-gazetteers of the country either started in San Francisco or had working experience there. Certainly, many of the better known cartoonists and comic strip men have off from there.

And no country has the sentimental appeal for its exiled sons and daughters that Holland has. The Dutch are most difficult of all to transplant, although the best of colonizers. A good example of this tug is Hendrik Willem Van Loon, the author. It so overwhelms him at times he will scurry to any boat in the harbor to go back that very day. I know Holland only by motor and Hollanders say that is like crossing England in a plane. The real Holland of Zeeland dress, scoop bonnets and wooden shoes, may be seen only traversing the canals. Yet the casual charm by motor of its wind-mills, geese girls, tulip fields, dykes, sailing sloops, dog-pulled carts and weekly scrubbed cottages certainly foments an ache to return. And if there is a more heavenly spot than that heavily shaded top town of Delft, I want to set sail there some golden twilight when the long-delayed ship comes in.

A lady in Los Angeles tells of the San Franciscan who had been in China for an extended stay on business. When he returned he brought back the No. 1 house boy of a rather urbane bachelor friend. He explained to his wife at the dock that the boy was a treasure and he wanted her to try him out. He served an excellent dinner and all went well. Next morning the husband left early for business. At 9 the boy knocked at the wife's door with a tray filled with a tempting breakfast. In about a half hour he returned, twitched her shoulder and smiled knowingly: "Time to go home now, missy!"

Supreme Court Adds to Score Against the New Deal.

BY DEVON FRANCIS
Associated Press Staff Writer.

The supreme court this week spoke its mind on more new deal legislation, and when Justice Sutherland had finished with the Guffey or "little NRA" act for the bituminous industry the score was: adverse rulings 8, favorable 2.

This legislation, establishing machinery for governing hours, wages and prices, had been urged by President Roosevelt in spite of "doubts of its constitutionality, however, reasonable," to help a sick business.

The court's ruling, holding it unconstitutional, revived suggestions of the possibility of the Constitution becoming a campaign issue. Particularly stressed was the 5-to-4 division in the opinions of the justices.

Assumed Power.

The court itself affords a legislative contradiction. The Constitution merely establishes it, nebulously defining its original jurisdictions; its appellate jurisdictions have been acquired in a two-fold fashion—it has assumed some on its own initiative and congress has created others.

But while congress has charted the areas bounding the operations of the court, some constitutional lawyers have argued that congress cannot curb the court's judicial powers.

Congress has not been above changing the supreme court's organization. Once, in 1866, it adopted a law reducing the membership from nine to eight, for the express purpose of forbidding President Johnson's filling a vacancy. Four times congress has increased the membership.

Whether constitutional revision will be made an issue in the 1936 presidential campaign remains to be determined.

Roosevelt Bulwark.

New Jersey held its presidential preference primary this week, the last before next month's political conventions, but the outstanding political item in the news bore an Albany, N. Y., dateline. Gov. Herbert Lehman announced his intention of not running for reelection.

The Democratic high command had counted heavily on the candidacy of Lehman, one of the party's greatest vote-getters, to help deliver New York's 47 electoral votes to Mr. Roosevelt in November. The word was passed around that Lehman would be drafted.

Gov. Harold G. Hoffman of New Jersey won a place as delegate at large on his state's representation in the Republican national convention in Cleveland, June 9, but stood fourth in the balloting for five candidates. His special opponent, former Congressman Franklin Fort, based his campaign on a demand that Hoffman be repudiated for entering the Hauptmann case. In the same primary Gov. Alf Landon of Kansas added to his victories over Sen. Borah, as Col. Henry Breckinridge obtained another "protest" vote against the new deal. Mr. Roosevelt's name was not on the ballot.

In Chicago former President Hoover told interviewers "It should be evident by this time that I am not a candidate" for the Republican presidential nomination; and in Attica, Kas., Landon told a high school graduating class to beware of "prophets teaching the doctrine of despair."

Dr. Francis E. Townsend, co-founder of the Old Age Revolving Pensions, Inc., punctuated the congressional week by walking out of a committee room where his organization had "the world by the tail with a downhill pull" had been entered in the record before he stalked out, charging the administration with "hostility."

The senate finance committee agreed tentatively on a modification of the house tax bill, with a boost in individual income tax rates averted for the moment.

In a move strikingly similar to that three months ago in Paraguay, Bolivian army officers seized control of the government in a bloodless coup.

At Williamstown, Mass., Leon Jack Somers, Jr., a college freshman, killed a classmate, wounded another and committed suicide; college authorities blamed overstudy.

Fifty thousand workers on the National Railways of Mexico struck, then returned to their jobs on the importunings of President Cardenas.

Harry P. Williams, aviator husband of Marguerite Clark, screen star, and John Worthen, his pilot, died in the crash of their plane at Baton Rouge, La.

Dr. Miguel Mariano Gomez Arias was sworn in as Cuba's first constitutional president since the Machado regime.

STOCK ADVANCE LED BY STEELS

Issues Continue Quiet Upturn With Gains of Fractions to Two Points.

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK, May 23—Buoyed by the strength of steels and specialties, stocks got another grip on recovery in today's market.

In a repetition of the recent quiet dealings, many issues pushed ahead fractions to 2 or more points. The close was firm. Transfers approximated 400,000 shares.

Among the foremost gainers were U. S. Steel, Bethlehem, Youngstown Sheet & Tube, American Steel Foundries, Sears Roebuck, Montgomery Ward, Western Union, Pullman, du Pont, Douglas Aircraft, Johns-Manville, U. S. Smelting, U. S. Industrial Alcohol, Westinghouse, Santa Fe, Delaware & Hudson and New York Central. Greyhound was up around 5 at its best in response to the declaration of an initial dividend.

The motors were only moderately ahead, as were most of the utilities and rails.

Wheat dropped about 2 cents a bushel at Chicago and other commodities were mixed. Bonds were fairly steady, as were the principal foreign currencies.

The long-awaited boost in steel prices, announced by the Carnegie-Illinois Corp., was seen as a straw in the recovery wind. The new rates, posted today with the opening of books for business of the third quarter, confirmed the recent forecast of Chairman Myron C. Taylor of U. S. Steel that the industry's outlook is "promising" and prices "headed upward."

In initial foreign exchange transactions the French franc was up .03⅛ of a cent at 6.58½ cents, and sterling was ⅞ of a cent firmer at $4.97⅞.

WHEAT VALUES DROP WITH NEWS OF RAIN

Moisture Reported in Both Winter and Spring Crop Territories.

By The Associated Press

CHICAGO, May 23—Dominated largely by reports of generous moisture both in domestic winter wheat and spring crop territory, wheat values met with material setbacks today.

Announcement that the open interest in Chicago May wheat contracts had been reduced 1,048,000 bushels yesterday to a total of 11,939,000 bushels tended further to relieve market tension. Bears also emphasized that Winnipeg wheat quotations were hovering around the season's low point, with authoritative predictions current that Canada's exports for the season will not reach the totals recently hoped for.

Wheat closed weak, ⅝@1⅞ under yesterday's finish, May 93¾@⅞, July 85½@¾, corn ½@⅝ down, May 62@62½, oats unchanged to ⅝ lower, and provisions unchanged to 12 cents decline.
